Therapeutic Cultures

Series Editors: Daniel Nehring, East China University of Science and Technology, China, Ole Jacob Madsen, University of Oslo, Norway, Edgar Cabanas, Universidad Camilo José Cela, Spain, China Mills, University of Sheffield, UK, and Dylan Kerrigan, University of the West Indies, Trinidad and Tobago

This interdisciplinary series explores the role which therapeutic discourses and practices play in the organisation of social life, critically addressing the two broad questions of how therapeutic knowledge is popularised beyond academia and mental health care, and how it participates in popular culture, and in institutional structures and processes in government, law, education, media, health, work, family life, public and private policies.

Therapeutic Cultures seeks to address the histories of therapeutic culture and engage with its contemporary manifestations, so welcomes books that examine the transnationalisation of therapeutic discourses and practices and their uses in local institutional settings, as well as studies of the ways in which therapeutic discourses and practices participate in the social organisation of power, and how they become ingrained across a wide array of institutions.

The Psychologisation of Society
On the Unfolding of the Therapeutic in Norway
By Ole Jacob Madsen
Jul 2018 • 208pp

This book explores the manner in which psychology has increasingly crept into everyday life. Showing that Norway, like the United States and Great Britain, is currently subjected to a psychological worldview or ‘therapeutic ethos’, the author examines an array of spheres such as media, law, religion, self-help literature and cosmetic surgery documents to shed light on the ways in which the therapeutic ethos, rather than simply ‘triumphing’ over them, actually blends in with regional norms and values.

Therapeutic Worlds
Popular Psychology and the Socio-Cultural Organisation of Intimate Life
By Daniel Nehring and Dylan Kerrigan
Aug 2018 • 240pp

Contributing to debates about therapeutic culture, in part by exploring some of its so-far widely under-researched facets, such as Christian religious-conservative self-help, Therapeutic Worlds offers significant points of departure from established scholarly narratives about therapeutic culture and the individualisation and fragmentation of intimate life. As such, it will appeal to scholars of cultural studies and the sociology of gender, sexuality, families and personal life.

Therapeutic Assemblages
Subjectivity, Materiality and Politics
Edited by Suvi Salmenniemi, Johanna Nurmi, Inna Perheentupa and Harley Bergroth
Jan 2019 • 248pp

This volume examines the ways in which people incorporate new therapeutic practices, such as self-help literature, life coaching, mindfulness, ‘alternative’ healing and self-tracking into their everyday lives. Presenting ethnographic case studies, it pays close attention to the material, spiritual and political aspects of people’s practices, and introduces the notion of ‘therapeutic assemblages’ to investigate how human and non-human actors, systems of thought and practice are assembled and interwoven in therapeutic engagements.
